

Global Experiences of Accessibility

Ann Frye

Meeting the mobility needs of disabled and older people around the world is both an economic and a social imperative.

The presentation will look at global trends in mobility and will explore the key drivers that are influencing developments around the world including ageing populations, changing settlement patterns and economic constraints.

The policy implications of these drivers will be discussed together with options for change based on best practice and learning from mistakes.